More info:

The ADAPT program is offered to eligible current Nemours Children's Health System patients as deemed necessary by the patient's psychologist. They have built a new barn and volunteers bring equine therapists daily for the patients. Patients will see the same equine therapist every visit in order to build a relationship. They are still in the process of certifying the canine therapists, and that service will be offered at a later date.

ADAPT is a first-of-its kind model to incorporate canines (dogs) and equines (ponies) into clinical, therapeutic treatment planning for Nemours patients. Through a partnership with local experts at the University of North Florida Brooks College of Health, Nemours will implement an ADAPT program to benefit today's patients and conduct large-scale studies that contribute to research for the benefit of people, and animals, everywhere.
